1. Outlines of the Hybrid Twinning Program

The Hybrid Twinning Program (hereafter abbreviated as HBT) is an international joint graduate education program at Shibaura Institute of Technology (hereafter abbreviated as SIT) that cooperates with the foreign partner universities in Southeast Asia, and combines Master's and Doctor's courses.

<The partner universities of HBT>

- Hanoi University of Science and Technology (Vietnam)
- King Mongkut's University of Technology, Thonburi (Thailand)
- Institut Teknologi Bandung (Indonesia)
- Universiti Teknologi Malaysia (Malaysia)
- Ho Chi Minh City University of Technology (Vietnam)
- Universitas Gadjah Mada (Indonesia)
- Suranaree University of Technology (Thailand)

The program was proposed and established in 2005 by the late Prof. Kenjiro Suzuki, the former Director of Center for International Programs at SIT, aiming the coexistence and cooperation with Southeast Asian countries. It is to be carried out as one of the activities under the Agreement for Academic Exchanges and Cooperation between SIT and its partner universities. Partner universities recommend their students to SIT and SIT accepts them if they are judged to meet its own selection criteria.

Since its establishment, SIT has offered two programs (the Master's + Doctor's Program and the Doctor's Program) in HBT. The following table shows the Education System of each course (program).

<Education System of the Hybrid Twinning Program>

The Master's + Doctor's Program	Under Graduate Level	Graduate Level
	Home University	Master's course		Doctor's course
		1	2	1	2	3
		Home Univ.	SIT	SIT

- Education at SIT

For the Hybrid Twinning Program, SIT accepts applications for both programs. The procedures and conditions for each phase are described in the following pages.

2. The Master's + Doctor's Program in HBT

1) Outline

Students or academic staff educated for more than one academic year in the Master's course (graduate level) or holding the Master's degree (or its equivalent) are transferred from partner universities to the second year of the Master's program of Graduate School at SIT. The transferred students will be educated in English and given supervision by one of the SIT professors to complete their Master's theses. The Master's Degrees from both SIT and his/her home university if applicable are conferred upon completion of the program.

All students completed the Master's program at SIT will be designed to enroll in its Doctor's Program through the entrance examination for the Doctor's program and study for another three years toward his/her SIT Doctor's Degree.

Calculation Method of Academic Point (AP)

1. Find Evaluation Point (EP) for each credit referring to the following table.
2. Calculate Academic Point (AP) utilizing the following calculating formula.

<Table>

Evaluation System of Home Univ.	Grade
	Four Stages Evaluation		A	B	C
Four Stages Evaluation		100~80	79~70	69~60	below 60
Five Stages Evaluation	S	A	B	C	F
Five Stages Evaluation	A	B	C	D	F
Five Stages Evaluation	100~90	89~80	79~70	69~60	below 60
Evaluation Point (EP)	3	3	2	1	0

<Calculation Formula>

$$\frac{(\text{number of credits of "EP 3"} \times 3) + (\text{number of credits of "EP 2"} \times 2) + (\text{number of credits of "EP 1"} \times 1) + (\text{number of credits of "EP 0"} \times 0)}{\text{total number of credits}}$$

Remarks

1. Calculate AP of recent (or the latest) 2 academic years. Regarding AP, 2.5 or above point is required for applying Japanese Government Scholarship
2. In case of not using credit system, number of subjects should be replaced with number of credits.
3. If there are any other grades than described on the upper table (such as "pass" or "approval"), ignore them.
4. Show to 2 places of decimals by truncating a number of 3rd decimal places if there is fractional figure.
